Gerri Gribi A Musical Romp Through Women's History

A unique musician, historian and storyteller, {Jerry Grí - bee} has toured North America for nearly 20 years.

She made her first television appearance at the age of 13, and at 15, sang as one of the youngest members of the renowned Cincinnati May Festival Chorus. She is a frequent guest on TV and radio, and her music has been featured in a variety of media outlets, including ABC Prime Time Live. She has lent her creative hand to numerous projects, including writing and performing music for the award-winning documentary "Poverty Shock: Anywoman's Story."

Her newest CD, "The Womansong Collection," has been widely and enthusiastically reviewed, both at home and abroad. She's been ranked among the Top Ten Artists by the National Women's Radio Play List.

She writes about topics in women's history and music, and has been published in academic journals such as Minerva, as well as popular periodicals and newspapers. She maintains a website of resources for anyone interested in women's studies and folk music.
